

Open Webinar Series: Cultural heritage solutions for water challenges (September-November 2020)

Are culture and heritage merely souvenirs of the past—to be cherished, preserved, and to be proud of? Or do they also offer solutions for challenges of the present and the future?

Between September and November 2020, TheWaterChannel will host a series of webinars being organized by ICOMOS Netherlands (International Council on Monuments and Sites). At the webinars, water managers and cultural heritage experts will articulate the importance of the cultural heritage of water/ water management; and how that heritage offers solutions to water and climate challenges that we face.

The first webinar in the series will be held on September 16 (1200 Noon CET; click here for local timings). Entitled ‘Water and Heritage: Explained,’ the discussions will lay out the very connection between the two realms; map international interest and developments in the topic; and outline the key research issues and challenges.

For more details about the September 16 webinar and the whole series, please visit www.thewaterchannel.tv/icomos

Also on this webpage are instructions as to how to register and attend.

Hope to see you there!

With regards,
The Webinar Team

